COUNTRY'S WASTED YOUTH.

DEMORALISING IDLENESS.

THE SCHOOL-LEAVING AGE.

ADVANTAGES OF RAISING IT.

Speaking on "Some aspects of adolescent education" at a Workers' Educational Association conference at the Stockport Secondary School the well-known historian and sociologist, Mr. R. H. Tawney, dealt with several features of the Hadow report and said the proposals it contained were the climax of a long period of discussion and experiment, and represented a policy in the direction in which enlightened authorities had been moving for some time.

It would be a misfortune if the interest taken at the present time in the older children caused them to forget the foundation of the whole educational process in connection with the early stages of life. They wanted not only more for the adolescent, but more nursery schools, better elementary schools, better buildings, better equipment, and better staffs.

But social causes had combined to turn attention to the adolescent at the moment. Every year brought fresh evidence of the social wastage and individual demoralisation which was caused by the failure to provide for the needs of these young people at one of the most crucial periods of their lives.

School-Leaving Age.

Dealing with the question of the raising of the school-leaving age, Mr. Tawney said if education was to exercise its full influence the period of life during which that influence should be exercised had to be sufficiently lengthened, and the Committee came to the conclusion that the age for compulsory school attendance should be raised to 15. It was not, however, a question of merely adding twelve months to the existing school age, but one of going back to the age of eleven; that the children might have at least four years in which to complete their post-primary and secondary course. The proposal as to raising the school age was a highly controversial one, but on the whole it had met with a welcome, that had surprised him.

The change could be made if there was a sufficient volume of public opinion behind it, but there would be very powerful opposition; there was the apprehension on the part of some employers that British industry would be ruined if these children of 14 years were not available for employment, and there was the financial argument that the cost would be a crushing burden upon the community. Anyone who remembered the situation in 1906 and 1909, or even the agitation of 1913, was familiar with considerations of that kind.

Effect On Unemployment.

One point which had been raised was that the birth-rate in 1921 was abnormally high, which would result in the number of children in the school of the ages of fifteen to sixteen being abnormally inflated from 1934-35, and that after that period the number would fall, and there would be a large number of school places which could not be used, and, further, that it would create greater unemployment. There was acute unemployment now among adults, and quite a considerable amount among young persons. If unemployment was serious to-day, it would be much more serious if the bulging population which was spoken of went on the labour market without the school age being raised in 1934. If the situation was difficult now, what would it be when a further hundred thousand boys and girls were scrambling for jobs in industries which could not find employment for others now? It was better that the schools should be overcrowded, as, in fact, they had always been, than that the children should be loafing on the streets.

Mr. Tawney said the total cost, provision of school places elementary and central, and a maintenance allowance of 15s. a week for 30 per cent. of the children, would be a little over £11,000,000. Against that there should be taken into consideration the possibility of re-organising existing accommodation and staffs, and the saving of a considerable sum of money at present paid out in unemployment benefit, etc.

MOSQUITOES AND THEIR REQUIREMENTS.

BETTER HOUSING AND FOOD WANTED.

The mosquito may be kept from biting human beings by providing him with shelter and food elsewhere than in the dwellings of man. That he often prefers other food to human blood appears from facts quoted in a recent editorial by The Journal of the American Medical Association (Chicago). We read:—

"Newspapers recently announced somewhat humorously that mosquitoes prefer horses to men on their menus." The statement was based on a study made by the Bureau of Malarial Control of Porto Rico. When horses and men slept in the same house, the mosquitoes attacked the horses and only rarely the men. The men later slept, without animals near by, in a house of the kind used by the poorer Porto Ricans; they were severely bitten by mosquitoes. Subsequently, when horses were tied at the door, only two mosquito bites were inflicted on the inmates of the house. In Europe, Roubaud has recently been engaged in related investigations. He has found that the mosquito is highly adaptable to conditions that affect its opportunities to feed on animal blood. Mosquitoes which feed on live stock develop more formidable mouth parts than those which feed on man. If live stock is kept out of doors, in a windy country, mosquitoes seek the interior of houses, away from the wind, and feed on the human beings who occupy the houses. On the other hand, if animals are housed in good stables the mosquitoes are content to remain in the barns. Moreover, if a barn stands between a swamp and a farmhouse, the family of the house will be relatively free from annoyance, for the mosquitoes will have become accustomed to feeding on the animals in the barn. Roubaud is convinced that in farming countries antimalarial work must take account of two factors: on the one hand, the presence of domestic animals and, on the other, the treatment of stagnant water. The inference from his work is an unusual one. Man may be as ruthless as he will in destroying the breeding places of mosquitoes, but some will succeed in breeding in spite of his efforts. These, it seems, can be rendered less menacing to man by the provision for them of shelter and of food elsewhere than in human habitations.

"INCITING CLASS HATRED."

INDIAN EDITOR SENTENCED.

CALCUTTA, Oct. 1st.

The editor and printer of Forward were to-day found guilty, under Section 153A of the Indian Penal Code, of having incited to class hatred in connection with the letter, entitled "The Railway Smash at Belur," published in Forward on July 13th. The editor was sentenced to three months' simple imprisonment and ordered to pay a fine of Rs.1,000 (£75), or in default undergo a further month's simple imprisonment. The printer was fined Rs.1,000 with the alternative of one month's simple imprisonment. Later the "High Court granted ad interim bail for one week, pending admission of an appeal.

"Following the railway accident at Belur, near Calcutta, in which 22 people were killed, Forward published a letter signed 'Horrid Spectator,' the writer of which declared that he was a passenger in the train and was prepared to prove that more than 300 were killed, half of whom were bludgeoned to death. 'The wounded,' he added, 'were searched for and killed.' Where a cry arose a Sahib came with a light and somebody delivered a heavy blow, and the Indian spoke no more."

"Anyone with experience of industry knew that there were unfortunately a good many trades in which there was a regular practice of taking on boys and girls at the age of 14 from elementary schools and dismissing them when they demanded higher wages at 18, and also where parents were thrown out of work by the competition of their own children. That situation was quite disastrous. What they ought to do was to check this stream that was overcrowding the labour market both for the sake of the children and the adults. If they did so they would save a good deal of unemployment insurance."

Money and Markets

THE VALUE OF THE YEN.

EXCHANGE AFFECTED BY GOLD EMBARGO
RUMOURS.

The yen was quoted on October 26th at 47½ cents gold, or 1s. 11½d. sterling according to official rates, the advance of half a point being due to the persistent report that the lifting of the gold embargo by the Japanese Government is now simply a matter of weeks.

According to official information received in Hong Kong from Japan yesterday, there were no sellers of yen on the exchange market, holders refusing to part with the currency in the hope, and expectation that its value in international exchange would very soon show considerable improvement. The announcement that Japanese bankers associated with the Clearing Houses in Tokyo and Osaka had met for the purpose of discussing the advisability of lifting the embargo and that, as a result of their discussions, they had advised the Minister of Finance to give immediate effect to their recommendation, caused the public in Japan to expect the embargo to be done away with very shortly, despite the hesitation of the Minister of Finance to take any action in the matter.

It is noteworthy that the number of supporters of the "lift the embargo" movement is daily increasing, and even those bankers who had formerly aligned themselves on the side of the oppositionists have now been won over. A free gold market is now practically endorsed by public opinion in Japan, and the only persons who are in any way against the lifting of the ban are those connected with the Ministry of Finance. Even the Governor of the Bank of Japan seems to be inclined to the view that a free gold market is advisable.

The Minister of Finance, however, intimates that the present is not a satisfactory moment to lift the gold embargo. The Government, he declares, must first take steps to make the venture absolutely safe, without any danger of reaction upon trade and industry. As soon as business conditions have reached such a stage, the Government would carry out the wishes of the bankers in the matter—but not before.

The bankers argue that prompt gold-payment is the only remedy to save Japanese business from the present impasse. Inasmuch as a large surplus of idle funds constitutes a grave factor in international exchange, the bankers insist that the best thing would be to "cause this idle money to be released. This would not only create confidence at home, but would strengthen Japan's financial position abroad.

Another reason why the bankers are so strongly in favour of the lifting of the ban is the general expectation that Japan's trade balance this year, in spite of the anti-Japanese boycott in China, will show an increase of exports over imports. The impression had been created that the anti-Japanese boycott had gravely affected the value of the yen abroad, but it is declared such is not the case. Although Japanese trade with China has been hard hit by the boycott, trade with other countries, notably the United States, South America, India, and the Straits, has been much better than previous years.

BRITISH TRADE IN CHINA.

JAPANESE ALARMED AT MANCHESTER COMPETITION.

Manchester goods have not only largely displaced Japanese piece-goods in China as a result of the anti-Japanese boycott, but have also successfully competed with German goods dumped in the market, according to data compiled by Japanese consular officials in China. Japanese piece-goods had occupied an important place in the China market until the inception of the boycott, but by the month of May goods from Manchester had assumed the leading position. In July and August the Chinese were buying practically nothing else but British goods, and although the Germans made desperate efforts to secure the lion's share of the trade, that share went to the British Lion, according to the Japanese officials interested in watching the Chinese market.

They point out that not only have British merchants done their utmost to regain their old position in the China piece-goods market, but the Chinese—in their boycott of Japanese goods—have turned to British goods of their own free will. Japanese exporters are alleged to have taken the situation too lightly, and completely failed to observe the measures taken by the British, hence, or to engage in effective counter-measures.

Not only in piece-goods but in the sugar trade, the Japanese have lost (Continued at foot of next column.)

CHINA'S HOME-INDUSTRIES.

OFFICIAL DEFINITIONS OF
"NATIONAL GOODS."

In view of the frequent references by Chinese officials to "national goods" in their appeals to the people to support home industries, it is interesting to have an official statement as to what are regarded as "national goods."

The Ministry of Industry, Commerce and Labour recently passed a resolution to the effect that in order to encourage home industry, a distinction must be made between genuine national goods and those produced with foreign capital, raw materials or labour.

The genuine national goods, according to the resolution referred to, must be produced with Chinese capital, raw materials and labour, though when necessary a small portion of foreign capital, imported raw materials or foreign technical assistance may be employed. Genuine national goods are, therefore, classified as follows:—

First Grade National Goods with pure Chinese capital, labour and raw material and under Chinese management; Second Grade, Chinese capital, management, labour and with a small portion of imported raw materials and foreign technical assistance; Third Grade, Chinese capital helped by a small portion of foreign loans, Chinese management, Chinese labour with foreign technical assistance; Fourth Grade, Chinese capital and management, a major portion of raw materials being imported, and Chinese labour and foreign technical assistance; Fifth Grade, Chinese capital helped by a small portion of foreign loans, Chinese management, the greater part of raw material being Chinese and Chinese labour with foreign technical assistance; Sixth Grade, Chinese capital with foreign loans, Chinese management, the greater part of raw materials being imported and Chinese labour with foreign technical assistance.

Semi-national goods are of three grades, produced under the following conditions:—First Grade, Chinese capital, foreign management, Chinese raw materials and foreign labour; Second Grade, Sino-foreign joint capital, foreign management, Chinese raw materials and Chinese labour; Third Grade, foreign capital and management and Chinese labour and raw materials.

REMITTANCES FROM OVERSEAS CHINESE.

ENORMOUS ANNUAL TOTAL.

Every overseas Chinese, merchant or labourer sends home annually an average of $37, according to an estimate by the Yokohama Specie Bank based on remittances from overseas Chinese in 1925. In that year 1,170,000 Chinese in the Straits Settlements remitted altogether $19,022,000, or $16 each, 250,000 Chinese in the Philippine Islands $13,222,000, or $53 each, and the 810,000 Chinese in the Dutch East Indies $10,840,000, or $13 each. The remittances from any of the three foregoing places averaged $27 a person. Calculated on this basis those 1,800,000 Chinese in Siam, 360,000 in French Indo-China and 300,000 in Burma should total total $68,430,000, which together with the $43,098,000 referred to above, makes a total of over $109,000,000. To this must be added the $50,000,000 or more from the Chinese in Europe and North and South America, bringing the final total to about $160,000,000, which may be taken to cover the unfavourable balance in China's foreign trade.

About 20 years ago a foreign authority estimated the maximum amount of yearly remittances from overseas Chinese to China at Tls. 120,000,000 a year as follows:—Canada and the United States, Tls. 28,000,000; Central and South America, Tls. 8,000,000; Japan, Tls. 2,750,000; the Philippine Islands, Tls. 4,000,000; Straits Settlements, Malay Archipelago, Siam, etc., Tls. 35,000,000; Formosa, Tls. 5,000,000; Hawaiian Islands, Tls. 3,250,000; Australia, Tls. 10,000,000; Siberia and Korea, Tls. 2,000,000; French Indo-China, Tls. 15,000,000; India, Tls. 10,000,000.

to the British. Japanese merchants have purchased 50,000 tons of Cuban sugar for re-export to China, but the British have purchased 200,000 tons of the commodity in Java.

According to information gleaned in Hong Kong business circles, it is feared by the Japanese that it will be extremely difficult to regain their position in the China piece-goods market, for once Manchester has again secured a strong footing in China, British merchants will not surrender that position without a strenuous fight. Japanese officials in China are of opinion that piece-goods manufacturers in Japan should get together and devise effective ways and means to cope with the situation.

DEBASED COINS TO BE RE-MINTED.

Owing to the refusal of the Canton public to accept the 90-cent coins issued in 1924, Canton officials and representatives of the local bankers and Chamber of Commerce have organized a commission to collect and re-mint the debased coins. Up to last month coins representing a total face value of over $441,000 were redeemed at 75. Examination found the coins containing from 50 to 60 per cent. of silver. The commission has ordered $2,000,000 bullion from Hong Kong and starting minting new 20-cent pieces, each weighing 1.44 gram (standard) and containing 70 per cent. of silver. One side bears an effigy of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, denomination, and the date of issue and the other two rice ears. The mint which was remodelled from a plant of the Canton Arsenal, is turning out $100,000 worth of coins daily.

DRASTIC RESTRICTIONS ON WATER SUPPLY.

NO RAIN TO BE EXPECTED BEFORE APRIL.

RIDER MAINS TO BE CUT OFF.

STATEMENT OF GOVERNMENT POLICY.

Owing to water shortage and the fact that the dry season appears to have set in, which means no heavy rain may fall until April, drastic steps are being taken by the Public Works Department to conserve the supply on the Island.

Mr. H. T. Creasy, C.B.E., Director of Public Works, has issued an earnest appeal to the public in the following terms:—

Owing to the low water level of the Storage Reservoirs on the Island it has become a vital necessity that the consumption of water for all purposes should be reduced.

The co-operation of the public in preventing waste and reducing consumption to a minimum is earnestly requested.

RIDER MAINS TO BE CUT OFF.

A second notice states:—

It is proposed on November 1st to cut off all Rider Mains and to place the Rider Main Districts on a street fountain supply available throughout the 24 hours.

The Director of Public Works adds that as yet no restrictions will be placed on metered property, but an urgent appeal is made to all householders to save water wherever possible and individual meters will be watched and action taken in the event of waste.

A full explanation of the Government's policy has also been issued and is published below:—

NECESSARY TO REDUCE BY 25 PER CENT.

The Director of Public Works states:—

Owing to the low water level of the Storage Reservoirs on the Island, restriction of water supply was introduced in the Rider Main Areas on September 9th.

It was then hoped that there might be considerable rainfall to raise the situation before the dry season finally set in, but that hope has not been realized.

The dry season appears now to have definitely set in and no effective rainfall can be expected before early April, and it is possible comparatively little may fall till the end of June.

Under the above circumstances, it is necessary to reduce consumption on the Island to a figure which will leave a margin of safety under the most unfavourable conditions, and now that the weather is cooler, the sooner the necessary restrictions are imposed the less drastic they will require to be.

It is proposed on November 1st to cut off all Rider Mains and to place the Rider Main Districts on a street fountain supply available throughout the twenty-four hours.

It is not, however, fair or reasonable that one section of the community only should be made to bear the entire burden of the necessary reduction in supply.

For many reasons it is not considered desirable at present to introduce actual restrictions to metered property, but the Government would earnestly appeal to all consumers to cut down their supply at least twenty-five per cent, and economise as far as possible in every way.

In the majority of cases a reduction in consumption of twenty-five per cent, merely means cutting out easily avoidable waste.

Bath water should be used for watering gardens and plants and for other purposes, such as washing down verandahs and drains, and servants should be ordered to economise as far as possible.

Read Your Meter Daily!

It is a simple matter for consumers to read their meters daily and so make sure that their orders are being carried out.

Government will carefully scrutinize the consumptions as registered by individual meters, and take such action as may be deemed necessary where waste is apparent.

Should voluntary restriction prove ineffective, it will be necessary to introduce compulsory restrictions.

I would appeal to you for your co-operation generally in the prevention of waste and reduction of consumption.

ARTERIAL AIRWAY FOR AMERICA.

TWO DAYS FROM PANAMA TO NEW YORK.

BIG SCHEME LAUNCHED.

LONDON, Oct. 2nd.

Plans for the biggest arterial airway in the world, linking up the United States of America, and South America, were, I learn, completed, with the final organisation in New York of the "Aviation Corporation of the Americas."

The new airway will in time become like a giant river fed at intervals by numerous tributaries, bearing passengers and goods from the whole length and breadth of America. It is confidently believed that the airway will weld together

OUTSIDE THE RIDER MAIN AREAS.

REASONS FOR NOT EXTENDING RESTRICTION.

1. DANGER OF FIRE.—If the mains were emptied daily, internal fire services would not function and the Fire Brigade would be without the means of fighting fires, at least in their initial stages when the Brigade is most effective. Even with a turncock standing by the necessary valves, in some cases an effective water supply could not be ensured for possibly half an hour or more after notice to turn on water had been given.

This disadvantage does not occur in the Rider Main Districts even with a fountain supply, as the principal mains are always charged.

2. UNLESS HOURS OF SUPPLY WERE VERY DRASTICALLY CUT DOWN, THE ECONOMY WOULD BE NEGLIGIBLE, IF ANY.

Consumers would probably draw more than required and would throw away the old water unused and draw fresh water each day.

When the mains filled up each day, the sediment in them would be stirred up and the first water from the taps would be possibly black and certainly brown. This water would be run to waste, and so, much of the possible economy would go down the drains.

This is particularly so in the Peak where the distribution pipes are wrought iron.

3. CONTINUAL CHARGING AND EMPTYING OF MAINS IS DANGEROUS AND CERTAIN TO LEAD TO BURSTS AND LEAKAGES.

When a main has been emptied, it naturally becomes filled with air, and when the main is recharged this air has to be expelled as the water fills the pipe. With a single main on a rising grade its filling is simple and not dangerous, but with complicated mains in cross streets at all sorts of gradients very slow and careful filling is necessary or air locks will form and hydraulic pressures and shocks will be set up in the mains, causing pressures far in excess of those the main is designed to withstand.

4. Supplies outside Rider Main Areas are either by street fountain or by meter. Wastage in metered supplies can be quickly noticed, as meters are read monthly and comparison can at once be made with previous consumptions.

the continent in a manner that would have been impossible with the older forms of transport. It will bring the West Indies within one day's journey, and Central America and Panama within two days' journey, of New York.

Mr. Richard F. Hoyt is to be Chairman of the new organisation, and the President will be Mr. Cornelius V. Whitney.

Post Office Contract.

The new company will control Pan-American Airways Inc., which was the pioneer in the establishment of an airway to Latin America and the first international air mail and passenger service to operate from the United States.

Through Pan-American Airways, which will be the operating company, the Aviation Corporation of America will manage a wide-spread system of international air mail and passenger routes under contract to the U.S. Post Office.

PICTURE EXHIBITION.

JAPANESE WATER COLOURS.

SOME INTERESTING OIL PAINTINGS.

The bi-annual exhibition of Japanese painting opens to-day at Messrs. Komor and Komor's. The pictures are as interesting on this occasion as they always are, perhaps more interesting because they include some half dozen oil paintings and a very large collection of prints besides the usual water colours and pastel. Those artists whose work we associate with Komor's exhibitions are all represented together with certain new men. Yamamoto, Tanabuchi, Kamo, and many others combine to make this exhibition an opportunity to study and appreciate modern Japanese art, and it is interesting to notice that in the foreign medium, oil, the Japanese follows far more closely the Western style.

The Oils.

The oil paintings are studies in technique, often the palette knife has been used to get broad effects noticeably in the skies. The chief merit in these oil paintings is their exquisite lighting effects, and of course, the skill in composition which seems inborn in the Oriental artist. The picture of the moonlit harbour is particularly attractive and there is another woodland scene which is distinctly reminiscent of Corot.

The Water Colours.

Among the water colours both large and small, there is an immense range of subject and price although none of them can be considered costly. Fuji, the sacred mountain, is represented many times in every mood, and all sides of Japanese life are reflected in portrait studies of both men and women. The temples of Nikko faithfully reproduced in every detail, the lovely and ever changing atmospheric effects of the land of the Rising Sun, and of the seas which encircle her are all treated over and over again by different artists with a different vision.

The Prints.

The prints might be roughly divided into three groups. Colour Prints of the modern school, which are gay, full of colour, and extraordinarily interesting in the way in which quite ordinary and even ugly objects are made to serve the purpose of decoration. Prints of the old school, are mostly copies of well-known old masters, of pictures of gods and goddesses, flowers, animals and birds. Modern original prints by well-known masters include elaborate theatre posters giving scenes exact in every detail from the Japanese stage, and wonderful sketches of expressive faces among many other subjects. Prints from either of the two first groups only cost a dollar or so, while even those of the third are no more expensive than the other pictures of the exhibition.

Komor's exhibitions need no introduction to the people of this Colony. They are always awaited eagerly and the pictures sell like the proverbial "hot cakes." It is quite necessary for anyone who wishes to see the exhibition as a whole to visit it within the first day or two after opening, since the paintings are removed when sold.

HONG KONG SHARE MARKET.

MESSRS. BENJAMIN & POTTS' REPORT.

Messrs. Benjamin & Potts, in their weekly report on the local share market, dated yesterday, state:—The slight setback in prices referred to last week seems to have come to an end and although there has not been any extension of business in the local market since the date of our last report, rates seem to have steadied and in some cases higher quotations are to be recorded especially in the more favourite stocks.

Hong Kong and Shanghai Banks have shown renewed strength and were dealt in up to 81,337, closing with further buyers at this figure. The London price is £141 (Middle). Unions were realised again at $360 at the outset, but have since advanced to $363. Cautions have had transactions at $675.

Steamboats are quoted 28½ with no business reported. Kowloon Wharves were put through at $138½ and more shares are wanted. China Prospects after sales at $5.40 have buyers at $5.30. Hong Kong and Shanghai Hotels fell away in the beginning of the week to $82, but a good demand for the shares subsequently raised the price to $90.30, the market closing easier with sales at $9.

Negotiated Hong Kong Lands were again negotiated at $67 and Realty's at $6.15, while Humphrey's Estates were taken off the market at $15.70 and $15½. Star Ferries have found buyers at $87½. Hong Kong Trams have been the medium of a fair turnover early in the week at $22.60, but have since declined and sales were made at the close at $22.

Hong Kong Electricity (old) changed hands at $92, and the new shares at $81.

TO CAMP OR NOT TO CAMP.

SIGNS OF A HARD WINTER.

A POSTPONED ENGAGEMENT.

[BY ROBT. MACWHIRTER, K.H.C.C.]

I don't know whether it's because I'm getting old or what, but everybody nowadays seems to be worrying about something or other.

Folk are just chokful o' alarms and from what I read it would seem that most of us live in a perfect fool's paradise. It doesn't matter what paper or book you lift, there's aye plenty o' folk and to spare crossing mental bridges before they come to them. If it's no future peace in the Pacific, it's the rising tide o' Mormonism. Or again some bright lad discovers that in fifty years time folk will lose the use of their legs or at worst the world's petrol supply will peter out.

Then again it's the iniquity of the flapper vote or what's likely to happen to the Bricklayers Union if Chancellors o' the Exchequer take to mixing mortar wi' their summer holidays.

As I said to Janet just the other night, it's either the exhaustion o' natural resources, earthquakes, glacial movements, over-population, ductless glands, prohibition, spiritualism or eugenics. Sandy Brown's mother said the first time she saw his photo taken in kilts, it's a terrible business all together and hard to thole!

Mind ye, there's a lot to be said in favour o' they Chinese newspapers. To the average foreigner they're no' nearly so upsetting. Even wi' some o' the Chinese themselves they're no' so wearing, for wi' a language like yon and the price o' rice what it is, it's a dollar to a hard pumelo, that it's a loss-whether your cook-boy thinks he's reading the Three Principles or the latest scandal at West Point. Ay, a language like that has its compensations. If you know what I mean, it's no' nearly so disturbing.

But Janet, she doesn't bother much about what's likely to happen to her great-grand bairns. They'll just have to fend for themselves, is her idea. Of course, it's hard for some women to look into the future except it's a case o' booking bridge, engagements and worrying whether it'll mean a new fur collar this year. Ay, we've got about a hundred-weight o' second-hand moth balls in our house right now but still they dinna seem to do much good. It means new things every back-end that a date or two on the old man's second-best pair o' trousers is neither here nor there. Ay, it's a sair fecht besides being the sign o' a hard winter.

But Janet, she's hard to put off once she gets a notion into her head.

"Man," says she, "dinna blether and let a body have a chance to get a word in edge-ways. Instead o' meaning about other folk, what about yourself?"

"Ay, lass, what now?"

Then she started all over again for about the twentieth time about me going to camp. I'd been trying to hold her off for days but I may just as well have spoken to the Kwongmingtang.

"Ay," says she, "when it comes to this time o' year, I've noticed ye get terrible patriotic. If it's no' Halloween, it's the Ball and now you say you've promised a man to go to camp on the 18th. A likely thing to be sure! Set you up wi' a kilts out at Fanning and wearing the boots off your feet. You'll just write and tell him that you canna' go stravaiging the New Territories that week-end anyway. You know you promised to help me at the M.C.L. affair on the 17th August, that's enough to worry me without you making it worse getting shot wi' they nasty machine guns."

"But I got a loan o' a camp-bed this."

"A well you'll be better sleeping in your ain hoose this year. Besides, if I have my way, you'll sleep without rocking the night you get home frae Lee Gardens."

"A richt, a richt, hand your wheest wuman."

As I was saying, material well-being isn't the ultimate object of life. Spiritual well-being is also demanded by civilised men and women. Quite so.

All the same, I think you'll agree wi' me that the establishment o' spiritual peace isn't so simple a thing as it looks.

CHANGES IN HANKOW.

FORTUNE-TELLERS MUST GO.

MODERN PROGRESS.

Hankow, Oct. 16th.

The streets of Hankow are to lose another of their charms for the lover of things Chinese. Old shops are being pulled down. The swinging signs are being removed. Now the edict has gone forth that within the next three months the astrologers, necromancers, phrenologists and physiognomists are all to disappear. What a flavour of antiquity there is about even the names of these professions! And what a fascinating thing it has been to mingle with the crowd while a wily old boy duped a cousin from the country!

The Country Cousin Inquires.

Stand for a minute or two by this little table. Notice the venerable appearance of the gentleman in charge. On his right is the cage containing two small birds. On the front of the table is a long row of cards edge up. In front of him is his white-painted writing-board and his ink and pens. All is eminently respectable, despite the animadversions of the recent edicts.

The country cousin draws near. He looks all round. He asks what it would cost to get a question answered. The old gentleman sympathetically inquires the nature of the question and the bumpkin replies that the farm has been doing badly owing to the drought and he has a rich relative in Hankow. "Stop, stop. You must not tell me anything. For four coppers I will tell you what you want to know," says the fortune teller. The coppers are paid, the door of the cage is opened, two grains of rice are deftly thrown on the needed group of cards, and the bird hops out. It swallows the rice and then hauls out a card and drops it before the old gentleman as it hurries back into cage to get two other grains of rice which have just been thrown inside.

The mystic characters on the card are studied. One of them is written in ink on the board. It is looked at from all angles. And then the old gentleman gives the verdict. "You are in need of money. You have come from the country to see a rich relative here. You hesitate to mention the question of money. Do not hesitate. He will listen to all you have to say and certainly help you." The face of the bumpkin brightens, but as he goes the old rascal winks at the foreigner and calls after him, "Mind you, I did not say he would lend you all you want."

The Wayside Doctor.

But these are not the only folks who have to carry their stools and tables home for the last time in December. The distinguished surgeons who pull teeth and perform acupuncture are to go too. Have you ever watched one of these men plunge a dirty, rusty needle straight into the body of his patient? If you have not, you have not seen how stoically a Chinese can endure pain. And even the physicians of repute with their little bottles of pills made from all sorts of queer things must practise no more. Certificates are now required, and how can a man sit for a medical examination who has specialised all his life in making holes large enough to let out noxious vapours in the backs of his fellow-men and done nothing else.

The rules about the fortune-tellers are to apply all through Hupeh Province and the local officials are to gather all the old and blind into homes and to see that the younger ones learn useful trades. Someone will have to do some hustling if the homes are to be ready by December. — North China Daily News.

BANDITRY IN HUPEH.

ROBBERY AND WANTON
DESTRUCTION.VENGEANCE ON TEMPLES
AND PRIESTS.

HANKOW, Oct. 18th.

Among the brigand leaders who are causing misery in South Hupeh is one named Peng, who claims to be a leader in the Red Army and is making his headquarters in the hilly country on the borders of Tongshanhsien. He is said to be the leader of several thousand men, and is now negotiating a union with two other bands so as to increase his power. It was one of these latter bands which visited a Christian Church and robbed the preacher. Just as they were leaving, they noticed his store of rice, which he had brought in just after the harvest, ready for the winter, and, as it was not possible for them to carry it off, one of the band emptied the contents of a tin of oil over it. It is this brutal destruction of that which they cannot carry away which makes the people so bitter.

Peng and his band have been making their headquarters on the slopes of the Kiuksungshan, which are very precipitous. The temples there are very popular in quiet times, for the gods of the shrines have control over rain and drought and can scatter prosperity or want at their will. Having burned many villages and captured many people, pressure has been brought on the military to round up this band, and soldiers have been sent to surround the mountain and to destroy the various roads which lead up it. There is now a rumour in the vernacular press that Peng is venting his wrath on the temples and their priests. It is said that the idols have been smashed and several of the priests killed. —N.C. MUNICIPAL SCANDAL AT

$300,000 SPENT IN A YEAR.

NOTHING TO SHOW.

NINGPO, Oct. 18th.

To-day's local paper contains a totally unexpected item of news indicating that the Ningpo municipal government is about to be dissolved and the management of the city turned over to the District Magistrate's office. It is said that a report has been received from Hangchow, to the effect that the Ningpo municipal government has used $300,000 in one year for administrative expenses with very little to show in the way of results commensurate. After careful investigation, the provincial government has come to the decision that Ningpo has no need of a municipal government.

It is supposed that the decision to turn the administration of the City over to the Hsien Tsing Fu is an endeavour on the part of the Provincial Government to fall into line with the scheme for the administration of provinces by districts which has already been outlined by the Ministry of the Interior. This scheme makes no provision for municipal governments in any cities.

Chkiang is divided into over 70 hsien of which Ningpo is one. During the next 12 months the Provincial Government is to make an attempt to organize at least 20 of these districts on the lines laid down by the Ministry of the Interior. The $300,000 saved on the Ningpo municipal government is to be distributed among the districts as follows, $10,000 each to the 20 districts under consideration, and the remaining $10,000 to other districts which have difficulty in meeting their expenditure.

Up to the present there is little local comment on the new scheme, except a mild editorial protest that the municipal government has shown plenty of enterprise in the matter of street widening and cleaning up the city generally. —N.C. Daily News.

CONVICTS AS WIT-
NESSES.ROBBER FAILS TO HELP A WOMAN.SEVERE SENTENCE FOR RECEIVING

It is not often that a prisoner who has been convicted for armed robbery and has had a taste of the "cat" will openly admit his guilt after stern denials in the higher Court.

Two prisoners recently sentenced to five years' imprisonment were brought before Mr. R. E. Lindell at the Central Magistracy yesterday to give evidence on behalf of a woman who was charged with receiving stolen property. The woman's defence was that she pawned certain articles under pressure from the men who gave them to her. At the time she was not aware that the articles were the proceeds of the two armed robberies in respect of which the prisoners were convicted. It was to verify this statement that the prisoners were brought to Court from the goal.

The prisoner Hung Yau was convicted in respect of the armed robbery at No. 363, Des Vaux Road West, while the other, Lau Cho, was sentenced for his part in the armed robbery at No. 31, Hay Wong Terrace. Both these men were arrested at No. 142, Hollywood Road. The woman was also found at this address, and a pawn ticket, in one of her boxes provided a clue to the discovery of the stolen articles in pawnshops in addition to those found in her cubicle.

Hung Yau admitted that he took part in the armed robbery in Des Vaux Road. The woman was given certain articles to pawn with a promise of twenty or thirty cents for her trouble, but she was not in a position to know that they were stolen property. After some hesitation he also admitted that articles stolen from the Hay Wong Terrace flat were also found on his floor, but he was not aware of their presence. He denied having taken any part in this robbery. The other prisoner, Lau Cho, was an occasional visitor to his floor and came to see him.

The second prisoner, Lau Cho, denied that he knew anything about the robbery or which he was convicted. He further denied that he knew the woman in the dock or the other prisoner.

His Worship observed that Hung Yau had had the decency at least to try and help the woman out. He (Lau Cho) had no decency and was a "brute beast."

In sentencing the woman to a total of twelve months' hard labour on the charges of receiving the stolen property, his Worship remarked that there was no doubt she assisted the robbers by pawning the articles.

MONEY.

HIMSELF TO BLAME!

Fumio Inouye, second purser on the s.s. Tengo Maru, on his own admission at the Central Magistracy yesterday, drank more beer than was good for him with the result that a number of people who came to help him get out of a ricksha "pinched" his pocket book in which was $18 in Hong Kong money and 14 yen.

It was his own fault, Inouye said, for losing the money. When he left his friends at the Chitose Hotel, he had a very hazy knowledge of his whereabouts. He entered a ricksha and simply uttered the word "ferry" to the coolie.

He was instead given a ride through a number of side streets and was finally dumped in a lane where four men helped him out. A little later he found his pocket book gone. It was all the money he had and there was nothing to do but to go back to the Hotel and sleep there till the morning. (Continued on next column).

S.S. "TAI LEE" REHEARING
DECISION.APPEAL FAILS, BUT FINE IS REDUCED.MARINE MAGISTRATE ON
"CARGO."

At the Marine Court yesterday morning, Comdr. J. B. Newill, R.N., D.S.O., delivered his judgment in the re-hearing of the case against the master of the s.s. Tai Lee for working cargo on Sunday, August 25th. It was found that the offence had been committed but in view of the small quantity of cargo worked that day, the fine of $250 was reduced to $150.

Mr. M. K. Lo who appeared on behalf of the defendant intimated that the case was one of principal rather than the amount of the fine. The judgment delivered covered the points of the offence as to the definition of cargo and of the workmen termed as "runners" who brought the goods on board. However, Mr. Lo would ask his Worship to decide in his judgment as to whether the ship had been worked or not, as this had not been clearly decided, and whether the evidence of the comrade had been accepted, that the food stuffs were brought on board by the people themselves through their agents.

Mr. Lo said that this was an important question and it was possible that the defendants might make a further appeal.

His Worship agreed to the point raised in his judgment and reduced the fine to $150, in view of the small amount of cargo loaded.

The Magistrate's decision was as follows.

The Decision.

The evidence shows that certain goods were placed on board on a Sunday and the question arises as to whether these goods come under the definition of cargo.

The ordinance does not define cargo but merely states what is not included in the term cargo and with certain exceptions is personal baggage.

Stroud's "Judicial Dictionary" however, defines baggage and this term is usually employed in connection with ships, "such articles of necessity or personal convenience as are usually carried by passengers for their personal use" and is synonymous with personal luggage.

By "luggage" we are able to understand such articles of necessity or convenience as are usually carried by passengers for their personal use and not merchandise or other valuables, although carried in the trunks of passengers which are not designed for any such use but for other purposes such as sale or the like.

In this case the goods were not required for the personal use of passengers but were most probably sold at a profit at the termination of the voyage. The meter of the passengers who are termed "runners" is somewhat obscure, but they act in a minor capacity as freight or passengers brokers for the benefit of the charterers. The charterers thus receive some consideration for allowing these people free passage and by permitting them to carry small quantities of merchandise and freight they are undoubtedly paid indirectly.

For these reasons I am unable to accept the argument of the defence that this form of merchandise is personal luggage and I find that cargo was worked on Sunday in contravention of ordinance.

The quantity loaded appears to be small and the fine previously imposed will be reduced to $150.

Police investigations following the report of the theft resulted in the arrest of a ricksha coolie who was found to have four yen notes hidden in his sandals. The man was charged with the theft of the pocket book, but on the application of his solicitor, Mr. Leo d'Almada, Sen., the case was adjourned until this morning.

Inouye made the extraordinary request that the money found on the prisoner should be given back to the accused, as it was his misfortune to have been robbed. He was prepared to forgive if all the money should "come back" to him.

His Worship suggested that the four yen should be placed in the Court's poor box. Inouye agreed to this being done and left the Court to rejoin his ship.

New Orthophonic
Victor RecordsIGNORING A TRAFFIC SIGNAL.TRAMWAY DRIVER AS DEFENDANT.

STORY NOT ACCEPTED.

An incident which occurred on the afternoon of October 17th near the King Edward Hotel resulted in the appearance of a motorman of the Tramway Company before Major C. Willson at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon on a summons for disregarding a signal given by a traffic constable at the junction. Mr. R. A. Wadeson appeared for the defendant.

A Shantung constable who was on duty at the post stated in evidence that east-bound tram-car No. 20 stopped at the halt near the Hotel. At the same time a number of motor-cars were approaching from the Wanchai direction, car No. 578 leading and the last vehicle being a motor cycle combination driven by Traffic Sergeant Baker. The driver of car No. 578 indicated that he intended to turn into Ice House Street in the direction of the Star Ferry. Witness gave a clear signal to the motor-car driver and a stop signal to the tram-car. The latter paid no heed and got on the move, a collision being averted by the motor-car driver pulling up in time while taking the turn.

Cross-examined by Mr. Wadeson, witness said he told the tram-car driver he would be summoned. The car was then passing him and did not stop.

Mr. Marcel's Evidence.

Mr. C. P. Marcel, the driver of car No. 578, said that on receiving a signal to proceed he took the turning into Ice House Street when the tram-car which was then stationary began to move in spite of the constable's warning signal which was given by holding his hand up facing the tram-car while witness was asked to come along by signals with his left hand. Witness had to pull up his car suddenly and proceeded after the tram-car had passed. He was then approached by Sgt. Baker and agreed to give evidence if a prosecution arose.

In answer to Mr. Wadeson, witness said the signal was quite clear. The constable kept holding his right hand up to the tram-car driver and waved to witness with his left hand.

Traffic Sgt. Baker bore out the evidence given by the previous witness. He said he had also to pull up in order to avoid a collision with (Continued on next column).

THREE POLAR AIRMEN
KILLED.ELECTROCUTED ON HIGH
TENSION WIRE.

PARIS, Sept. 30th.

Three Italian airmen were killed by a high power electric wire and their machine wrecked yesterday near Valence, in the valley of the Rhone.

The Italian Navy hydroplane, San Marino, was on its way home from Spitzbergen, where it had been co-operating in the search for Amundsen, when, as it was flying above the Rhone, it turned to avoid a furious storm coming up the valley. As it swung round the plane struck the wire of the Vercois power station.

The machine crashed into the river, while its propeller was torn off, and the engine broke away and plunged into the water. Commander Pinso, Lieutenant Crosio, and non-commissioned officer Della Gatta were in the front cabin, all killed at once; it is believed, by the electric current of 20,000 volts. Their bodies, which have not yet been recovered, and the wreck of the machine were swept away by the current.

Two mechanics, who were in the after cabin, were rescued by witnesses of the disaster and taken to hospital with slight injuries.

Commander Pinso was the first Italian pilot despatched to look for the ill-fated Latham aeroplane which had been sent by the French Government to succour the Mobile expedition. He left Bergen last Wednesday. His belief was that the Latham had been forced down on the sea.

The fate of the San Marino brings up to eight the number of deaths among those who set out to rescue the survivors of the Italia.

Mr. Marcel's car which had been forced to stop suddenly owing to the tram-car getting away against the policeman's signal.

Defendant's Story.

In the witness-box, the defendant stated that he carried out his usual routine of landing and picking up passengers at the halt. He then grounded the gong twice, and had put his regulator handle to third notch when the constable suddenly put up his hand as a signal to stop. He did so, but there was not enough room for the motor-car to pass in front of his vehicle. The constable then motioned to him to proceed and he continued his journey.

After the close of this evidence, Mr. Wadeson submitted that the defendant's story of the incident was the more probable and that the signal was given when he had already started to move. It was not likely that a policeman would hold his hand up to a stationary tram-car.

His Worship registered a conviction, fining the defendant $10.

INVESTITURE AT GOVERNMENT HOUSE.

EIGHT LOCAL RESIDENTS DECORATED.

BRILLIANT ASSEMBLY OF OVER 400 GUESTS.

HONOURS FOR THOSE WHO ENTER-TAINED THE DEFENCE FORCE.

At the investiture held last night at Government House the eight local ladies and gentlemen who were mentioned in the last Birthday Honours list were invested by His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government (the Hon. Mr. W. T. Southorn, C.M.G.).

The recipients of the honours were entertained to dinner at Government House before the ceremony, which was attended by over 400 guests.

The assembly with the men in full evening dress and wearing their decorations and the ladies in magnificent gowns and jewellery was particularly brilliant.

His Excellency addressed each of the recipients of honours separately, and the whole procedure was very impressive, the Chief Justice (Sir Henry Gollan, K.C., C.B.E.), who wore crimson robes with a full-bottomed wig, reading the Royal Warrant in each case before the decoration was pinned on by His Excellency.

THE RECIPIENTS.

The honours conferred are as follows:

Commander of the Order of the British Empire (C.B.E.).—Mr. H. K. Holmes, the Crown Solicitor.

Officers of the Order of the British Empire (O.B.E.).—Dr. S. W. T'so, LL.D.; Mr. R. Sutherland of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co., Ltd.; and Miss L. E. Mackay, R.R.C. (member of the Royal Red Cross), Matron in Queen Alexandra's Imperial Military Nursing Service and Matron of the Military Hospital.

Member of the Order of the British Empire (M.B.E.).—Mrs. C. G. Alabaster, Mrs. E. D. C. Wolfe, and Mrs. H. R. Remington. Imperial Service Order (I.S.O.).—Mr. A. J. Reed, of the Senior Clerical and Accounting Service, accountant of the General Post Office.

THE CEREMONY.

After dinner H.E. the Officer Administering the Government (the Hon. Mr. W. T. Southorn, C.M.G.) and Mrs. Southorn received their guests in the lounge, after which, with the exception of those who were taking part in the processions, the guests took their places in the ball room, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion.

His Excellency entered in state accompanied by his A.D.C. and eight gentlemen in the following order:

Captain A. J. L. Whyte, R.E., A.D.C., and walking in pairs, the two Indian A.D.C.s, Acting Subadar Major Dhanna Singh, and Acting Subadar Major Pirar Ditta, D.C.M., Colonel Stewart and Colonel Bostock, Mr. W. W. Hornell, C.I.E., and Colonel Skinner, the Hon. Mr. E. R. Hallifax, C.M.G., C.B.E., and Commodore J. L. Pearson, C.M.G., Sir Henry Gollan, K.C., C.B.E., and H.E. Major-General C. C. Luard, C.B., C.M.G., H.E. the Officer Administering the Government. While this procession moved up the ball room to the dais the band of the K.O.S.B. under the baton of Mr. FitzGerald, A.R.C.M., played processional music, and as soon as His Excellency and his cortège had taken up their position on the dais the band played the first six bars of the National Anthem.

MR. H. K. HOLMES, C.B.E.

The processions of those to receive their decorations were formed up outside the ball room and entered in the following order:

The first procession headed by Major H. B. L. Dowbiggin, A.D.C., was that of Mr. H. K. Holmes, C.B.E., the Crown Solicitor. Mr. Holmes was supported on the right hand side by the Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall, C.M.G., and on the left by Mr. Jenkin, C.B.E. The procession halted just in front of the dais with Mr. Holmes facing His Excellency.

The Chief Justice (Sir Henry Gollan, K.C., C.B.E.) then received a copy of the warrant from Captain Whyte, and read it aloud as follows, afterwards handing it to Captain Whyte.

GEORGE THE FIFTH by the Grace of God of Great Britain, Ireland and the British Dominions beyond the Seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India and Sovereign of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire: We do hereby commend unto you our trusty and well beloved Harold Kennard Holmes Esquire Greeting.

Whereas We have thought fit to nominate and appoint you to be a Commander of the Civil Division of Our said Most Excellent Order of the British Empire: We do by these presents grant unto you the Dignity of a Commander of Our said Order and hereby authorise you to have hold and enjoy the said Dignity and Rank of a Commander of Our aforesaid Order together with all and singular the privileges thereunto belonging or appertaining.

Given at Our Court at Saint James's under Our Sign Manual and the Seal of Our said Order, this Fourth day of June 1928 in the Nineteenth year of Our Reign.

By the Sovereign's Command, (Sd.) EDWARD P. Grand Master

His Excellency then addressed Mr. Holmes as follows:

"My close association with you in your capacity as Crown Solicitor during the last three years has enabled me to realize how completely you have deserved the honour which His Majesty has been pleased to confer on you. Your legal ability has been coupled with tact, discretion and devotion to duty which are beyond all praise. Nothing was too difficult, nothing was too much trouble when your advice was sought, and when the Shanghai Defence Force was sent to Hong Kong and the Military Authorities were suddenly confronted with many complex legal questions it was to you that this Government turned to help them. It was no surprise to me to receive from the General Officer Commanding a glowing encomium of your work on behalf of the Military Authorities and the Imperial Government.

It gives me the greatest personal pleasure to be the means of investing you with the Insignia of a Commander of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, and I offer you my heartiest congratulations.

Having received the insignia of the C.B.E. from Major H. B. L. Dowbiggin, A.D.C., who carried it on a red velvet cushion, His Excellency then invested Mr. Holmes. Mr. Holmes and his supporters then took up their allotted positions on the dais facing the audience.

DR. S. W. T'SO, O.B.E.

The second procession led by Captain P. Perfect, K.O.S.B., consisting of Dr. S. W. T'so, O.B.E., supported on the right hand by the Hon. Mr. H. T. Creasy, C.B.E., and the Hon. Mr. C. McI. Messer, C.B.E., on the left then advanced to the dais in the same manner as the first procession.

The same procedure was gone through here and in the following investitures, the Chief Justice reading the warrant, expressed in similar phraseology, and His Excellency addressing the recipient of the decoration before investing them.

His Excellency made the following address to Dr. T'so:

"It gives me great pleasure, to be the means of investing you with the Insignia of an Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire. For over thirty years you have been devoting yourself to work for the public good of the people of this Colony. The fact that you are actively connected with no less than seventeen public or semi-public bodies in Hong Kong is sufficient testimony of your public spirit. Nor have you been content to be a lay figure on any of the committees with which you have been associated. Your energy and initiative have been unbounded, and the Colony owes you a great debt for the practical interest you have shown in all matters connected with the prevention of disease, the furtherance of education and the preservation of law and order.

"I congratulate you most warmly on the honour which His Majesty the King has conferred upon you." The insignia of the O.B.E. was handed by Captain Perfect to His Excellency who invested Dr. T'so.

Miss Mackay.

The second procession having taken up its position on the dais, the third procession moved up the ball-room led by Captain Johnson, A.D.C. to H.E. Major-General C. C. Luard, C.B., C.M.G. Miss Mackay, Military Division, O.B.E., was supported on the right by Sir Robert Ho Tung and on the left by Mr. George Duncan.

Addressing Miss Mackay before investing her His Excellency said: "It gives me great pleasure to be the means of investing you, on His Majesty's behalf with the Insignia of an Officer of the Military Division of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire.

"The distinctions you already wear bear testimony to your long and distinguished record in the Nursing Service of His Majesty's Forces, and it has pleased His Majesty to confer on you this further distinction, not only in recognition of your past service, but as a special mark of appreciation of the ability with which you carried out the extra work and responsibility thrown on your shoulders by the arrival of the Shanghai Defence Force.

"I congratulate you and wish you all success in your noblest of callings."

Honours For Those Who Entertained Shanghai Defence Force.

When Miss Mackay and her supporters had taken their places on the dais four processions moved up the ball room together. These in the order of investiture were: Pay-Commander Rogers, M.B.E., followed by Mr. R. Sutherland, O.B.E., who was supported on the right by the Hon. Sir Shou Son Chow and on the left by Mr. P. P. J. Woodhouse. Mr. Wright, R.A., followed by Mrs. Alabaster, M.B.E., who was supported on the right by the Hon. Mr. C. G. Alabaster, K.C., and on the left by Mr. Ho Kom Tong. Major H. B. L. Dowbiggin, A.D.C., followed by Mrs. Remington, M.B.E., supported on the right by Captain Doyle and on the left by Colonel Robertson. Captain P. Perfect, K.O.S.B., followed by Mrs. Wolfe, M.B.E., supported on the right by the Hon. Mr. E. D. C. Wolfe and on the left by Mr. E. Cook.

When the leading member of procession 5, that headed by Pay-Comdr. Rogers, was five yards from the dais, the four processions halted and His Excellency made a short address to those who were to be invested as follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—The sudden arrival of the Shanghai Defence Force found the Colony very inadequately provided with social amenities for the largely increased number of troops which were for a time stationed in Hong Kong.

An appeal was made for help and the response was as prompt as it was generous. With the aid of the local Young Men's Christian Association and particularly of its energetic secretary, Mr. J. H. Hunt, O.B.E., special canteens were established both in Hong Kong and in Kowloon, concerts were arranged, and facilities for sports were organised, all by voluntary helpers at considerable sacrifice of time, energy and convenience, and the work was continued with unflinching zeal throughout the heat of the trying summer weather.

It was impossible to give separate recognition to each individual helper where the whole community has done so well, but His Majesty, desirous of conferring on the community a signal recognition of His appreciation of the efforts made on behalf of His troops, has been pleased to confer honours on six of the ladies and gentlemen who took part. Mrs. Russell Brown and Captain Adey are absent today, but it is my privilege to invest Mr. Sutherland, Mrs. Alabaster, Mrs. Remington and Mrs. Wolfe with the insignia of the honours conferred on them.

Mr. Sutherland, O.B.E.

Pay-Commander Rogers then advanced with Mr. Sutherland's procession, the warrant having been read His Excellency addressed Mr. Sutherland as follows:

"His Majesty has been pleased to promote you from the position of a Member to the position of an Officer in the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire. You have worked and continue to work incessantly for the welfare of the Troops in Hong Kong. You organised concerts, sports and entertainments, and your continued interest has again been shown in your important contribution to the success of the recent Tattoo.

I congratulate you.

His Excellency then invested Mr. Sutherland, and addressed each of the 4 others decorated for the same services, before investing them.

Mrs. Alabaster, M.B.E.

To Mrs. Alabaster he said:—You share with Mrs. Wolfe the distinction of having devoted more of your time to the work of the Young Men's Christian Association canteens than any other voluntary worker. Your efforts in organizing the libraries have been specially appreciated, and your popularity with the members of His Majesty's Forces is a splendid testimony to the appreciation evoked by your work.

I congratulate you on the honour conferred on you and have much pleasure in investing you with the Insignia of a Member of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire.

Mrs. Remington, M.B.E.

To Mrs. Remington:—You were responsible for organizing the Ladies' Service at the canteen in Kowloon, the success of which was due in no small measure to your untiring efforts on its behalf. The same spirit which led you to the War Service of which you wear the honoured distinctions, no doubt led you to volunteer for the arduous labours of the Kowloon canteen, and your devotion to duty, even at the expense of health itself, won unstinted admiration.

I have much pleasure in investing you with the Insignia of a Member of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire and in offering you my congratulations.

Mrs. Wolfe, M.B.E.

To Mrs. Wolfe:—You share with Mrs. Alabaster the distinction of having devoted more of your time and energy to the work of the Young Men's Christian Association canteens than any other voluntary worker. On you devolved the task of organizing the entire restaurant side of the Young Men's Christian Association canteen in Hong Kong, including the personnel, the equipment and the food. The extreme popularity of this canteen was largely due to the excellence of the food and drink provided and for this His Majesty's Forces were indebted to your initiative and organizing ability. Your tireless energy was an inspiration to all helpers.

I have much pleasure in congratulating you on the honour conferred upon you, and in investing you with the Insignia of a Member of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire.

Mr. Reed, I.S.O.

To Mr. Reed:—For over forty years you have served in the clerical branch of the Civil Service of this Colony, in the course of which you have risen to the very responsible position of Accountant of the General Post Office, and have become one of the mainstays of that important Institution. In recognition of your long, faithful and efficient service His Majesty the King has appointed you to be a Companion of the Imperial Service Order, and it gives me much pleasure to invest you with the badge of the Order. I congratulate you heartily on this well-earned honour.

The Ceremony Completed.

When the investiture was finished the members of the various processions descended from the dais and moved to the centre of the ballroom in the following order.

From left to right: Captain P. Perfect, A.D.C. and Major H. B. L. Dowbiggin, A.D.C., followed by Captain Johnson, Mr. Wright, R.A., and Pay-Comdr. Rogers, R.N. Sir Henry Gollan, K.C., C.B.E., His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government and His Excellency the General Officer Commanding. Mr. R. Sutherland, O.B.E., and Mr. H. K. Holmes, C.B.E.; Miss Mackay, R.R.C., O.B.E., and Dr. T'so, O.B.E.; Mrs. Alabaster, M.B.E., and Mrs. Remington, M.B.E.; Mr. Reed, I.S.O., and Mrs. Wolfe, M.B.E.; The Hon. Mr. E. R. Hallifax, C.M.G., C.B.E., and Commodore J. L. Pearson, C.M.G.; Mr. W. W. Hornell, C.I.E., and Colonel Bostock; Colonel Stewart and Colonel Skinner; Sir Shou Son Chow and The Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall, C.M.G.; Mr. P. P. J. Woodhouse and Mr. Jenkin, O.B.E.; Sir Robert Ho Tung and The Hon. Mr. H. T. Creasy, C.B.E.; Mr. Duncan and The Hon. Mr. C. MacI. Messer, C.B.E.; Colonel Robertson and Mr. Ho Kom Tong; Captain Doyle, O.B.E., and The Hon. Mr. E. D. C. Wolfe, C.M.G.; Mr. Dixon and Lieutenant Atkins, and bringing up the rear the two Indian A.D.C.s and Captain A. J. L. Whyte, R.E., A.D.C. When this procession reached the centre of the ballroom the members dispersed and mingled with the other guests.

The band of the K.O.S.B. which had given processional music during the ceremony continued to play during the rest of the evening to entertain the guests.

WORK DONE ON "SHINYO MARU."

BOTH LITIGANTS GET JUDGMENT.

EACH TO PAY THE OTHER'S COST.

After a protracted hearing the case in which one sub-contractor sued another sub-contractor for work done on board the s.s. Shinyo Maru on July 3rd of this year, was concluded yesterday at the Summary Court before Mr. Justice P. Jacks.

The plaintiff, Kwok Yee, claimed from the defendant, Li Ming, the sum of $263 being balance for work done. The defendant counter-claimed for $278 for work which plaintiff had left undone and also the cost of installing new electrical wires in the bunkers which the plaintiff's workmen had burnt.

Mr. A. el Arculli appeared for the defendant and Mr. W. D. Owen was for the plaintiff.

After a witness had been called to prove that a new set of electrical wires had to be installed because the old ones were burnt in several places through the negligence of the plaintiff's workmen, Mr. Arculli addressed the Court.

He reminded his Lordship that there was no dispute as to the price which the work was contracted for and that there was also no dispute as to the fact that defendant had to supply the paint. The only thing in dispute was the balance of money due to the plaintiff.

In this connection, Mr. Arculli said that the reason why plaintiff had not been paid in full was because he had omitted to do certain work which was in the contract. "You cannot paint half a table when you have contracted to paint a table," Mr. Arculli added. The tender, he said, specially called for painting and scraping the bunkers. In doing this it was most important to paint the tank tops and the bilges because they came in for the heaviest wear and carried most dirt. The evidence showed that the defendant had expressly told the plaintiff about this piece of work, and it was also given in evidence that defendant himself had contracted this work from the original contractor, Toh Kee. "Would it therefore be likely that defendant had told the plaintiff not to do this piece of work when he himself had promised the original contractor to see to it," Mr. Arculli asked.

Furthermore the plaintiff knew that he had to do the work to the satisfaction of Toh Kee and not the defendant. It became at once obvious that defendant had particularly impressed upon the plaintiff what to do. Toh Kee had also given in evidence that plaintiff had admitted that he burnt the wires and that he had left a certain part of the work undone. All plaintiff asked of Toh Kee was not to make the reduction too heavy.

For the plaintiff, Mr. Owen said that as to the burning of the wires there was no direct evidence that plaintiff had done it. It was only a presumption. He also said that the witnesses for the plaintiff had simply borne out that painting the bilges and tank tops was not part of the contract.

After reviewing the facts of the case, his Lordship gave judgment to the plaintiff on the claim with costs. On the counter-claim judgment was given in favour of Mr. Arculli's client to the extent of $139.40 with costs.

CHINESE ART.

EAST AND WEST.

Mr. Tse Tsan Tai, author of "Ancient Chinese Art," has received the following interesting letter from Mr. Laurence Binyon, the famous poet, art critic and authority on Chinese Art, and Director of the Department of Prints and Drawings of the British Museum.

Dear Mr. Tse Tsan Tai,—Thank you so much for sending me your pamphlet "Ancient Chinese Art" which I have read with interest.

I agree with you in thinking that it is through the arts that East and West can best come to know each other: and how essentially akin are the greatest productions of either hemisphere!—Believe me, Yours sincerely, (Sgd.) LAURENCE BINYON.

MARSHAL LI TSAI HSIN.

We think it will be little short of a disaster if the rumours are true that Marshal Li Tsai Hsin intends to resign his position in Canton and to devote himself exclusively to political work in Nanking. We hold no brief for Marshal Li either as an individual or as a great organiser and administrator, but he is the recognised and generally accepted leader in Kwangtung. There is no one who can readily take his place and the Province cannot be left without someone at the head of affairs who will command the respect, and to some extent the loyalty, of all sections of the community. Naturally if Marshal Li resigns, his successor will be appointed by Nanking. That is where the danger lies. There will probably be several aspirants for the position, some with supporters in the North and others with followers in the South and a clash of interests would seem to be inevitable. At the best there is bound to be a re-awakening of intrigue and jealousy in a province which for some months now has given signs of gradually settling down to a programme of orderly development.

Confidence in the stability of the local government is the one great essential to a revival in trade. Fear that Marshal Li's absence would tend to undermine the confidence which was just beginning to manifest itself was the reason why his friends implored him not to leave Canton, for any consideration, at this critical period in its history. Certainly nothing untoward has happened whilst the Marshal has been conferring with the politicians in the North, but that is no evidence the fears were groundless. The past few months have been months of considerable anxiety to the officials awaiting his return and many telegrams have been dispatched in the hope of hastening that journey. Now if Marshal Li comes back simply to resign, as is suggested, and a less popular chief takes his place, the whole work of moulding the conflicting elements into a cohesive whole and providing a basis of understanding and co-operation between the Government departments, will have to be done over again. And who can say whether it will be successfully accomplished? It is a serious, and entirely unnecessary risk which would be avoided completely by a declaration that the Marshal intended to stay permanently in the position for which events have proved he is pre-eminently fitted. We trust that such a declaration will be issued and that the disquieting rumours of other plans, which are doing a considerable amount of harm, will be finally laid to rest.

As we have many times stated the establishment of strong provincial governments is of far more importance to China to-day than the concentration of paper authority in the hands of a committee in Nanking. That Committee may clothe itself with the trappings of Government but it will have no power beyond that which the provinces care to accord it. An example of the difficulties which will arise has been given in Swatow recently. We have previously described, in some detail, the activities of the Surtax Bureau there and the opposition of the merchants which developed to such an extent that, for a time, all export business was stopped. An appeal was made by a number of Chambers of Commerce to Nanking and an order was sent to the Tax Bureau that the regulations, to which exception had been taken were not to be enforced. Apparently, however, about the same time Canton authorised the Bureau to proceed according to programme. We do not believe Canton at this stage would openly set Nanking's orders at defiance. There has been a misunderstanding somewhere, but the fact remains that the officials in Swatow refuse to recognise Nanking and flaunt the telegrams from Canton as an excuse for continuing their policy of "squeeze." If by some conceivable chance Canton upheld the Surtax Bureau against the orders from the North what effective measures, other than the recommencement of civil war, could Nanking take to enforce her commands.

It is announced that Captain Guy Waterhouse Halifax has been selected for the post of British Naval Attaché at Paris, to date October 15th, in succession to Captain J. M. Pipon, C.M.G., M.V.O., O.B.E. Captain Halifax entered the Navy 30 years ago, and became a lieutenant in 1905, afterwards specializing in torpedo duties. During the late War he was torpedo officer of the battleship Ajax, in the Grand Fleet, and was promoted to commander in June, 1917. Later, he was appointed to the Wireless Telegraphy Department of the Signal School. His promotion to captain was made in June, 1924, when he was serving at the League of Nations. From August, 1926, he commanded H.M.S. Carlisle, on the China Station.

News comes from America of an ingenious method of earning a living which will, no doubt, find its way to England in the course of time. Offers to purchase land suitable for air-ports are inserted in advertisement columns of newspapers. Those who reply are asked at what price they would be prepared to sell their land. One woman informed the advertiser that she was willing to sell her land for $9,000. He in turn informed her that the land would, of course, have to be "inspected" by an expert before the transaction was completed. The fee for his inspection would be $50, "in addition to the expert's travelling expenses," payable (by her) in advance. She paid the fee and the expenses. The "expert" came, made his inspection, pronounced the land unsuitable, and departed, leaving the disappointed client more than $50 poorer and considerably wiser.

"As I have always had the reputation of being late for my appointments, my job will still be to be late at my funeral—may it long be postponed—and I hope my friends will enjoy the joke. Make me ten minutes late." This is the strange conclusion to the will of Mr. P. T. Goodban, of London, who died leaving property valued at £189,323. He left the bulk of his fortune to his wife. Mr. Goodban's will was not read, however, until after the funeral, which had taken place punctually.

Silver articles made either in the reign of Mary Tudor or under Cromwell's régime are one of this autumn's collecting fads in London. Both these are brief periods in history, Commonwealth silver being marked between the years 1649 and 1658, and Marian only from 1553 to 1557. A Commonwealth bowl and jug made in 1636, brought nearly £450 when put up to auction not long ago, and a Marian piece sometimes realises £30 or more an ounce. The priceless collection in Lord Swaythling's possession contains a Marian example made in 1550, and known as "Archdeacon Wright's Jug," which is impressed with the curious maker's mark of "a stag's head caboshed." A silver alms-dish in St. George's Chapel, Windsor, was made in the same year. Lord Swaythling also owns a remarkable twelve-sided Cromwellian silver-gilt cup, made in 1649, and Lord Rosebery a smaller cup made six years later.

In connection with the fiftieth anniversary of the "world's first test of the dynamo," interesting reminiscences are given in the Journal of the Franklin Institute by C. F. Brush, the inventor of the arc light dynamo, and Elihu Thomson. Brush relates how he first tested his dynamo in a sawmill, using a team of horses to get the required power. He excited his dynamo with a single battery, and he relates his joy when the machine suddenly began to develop electric power and the horses were nearly brought to a stop. It is interesting to remember that even in those days Deschanel's "Natural Philosophy" was regarded as a standard authority on electricity. In 1860 the Brush system of electric lighting was exploited in Great Britain and throughout Europe, a factory being equipped in London. The unit of electric current was then called the "weber." It was not until the International Conference in Paris in 1881 that the "ampere" was officially adopted. In the early days, Brush made all the requisite working drawings himself, and also all his special-testing appliances. It was a "one man" laboratory. He wrote all his own patent specifications and tested and personally adjusted all his lamps and dynamos. Elihu Thomson carried out the tests on dynamo machines for the Franklin Institute in 1878. The lack of instruments made it necessary to improvise all kinds of methods of making measurements. He relates that the Committee of the Senate in 1900 which advised the establishment of the Bureau of Standards at Washington, took into consideration papers by Lord Kelvin and Prof. Synder in arriving at their decision. So far back as 1861, Elihu Thomson had observed curious high frequency phenomena, and in 1889 he constructed a high frequency alternator.

There is good news from Louisville, Kentucky. One city of the world at least has got rid of the old and tiresome necessity of leaving the motor-car, and finding somewhere to leave it, before shopping joys could begin. The solution was already long overdue, for millions of cars are being bought every year in the United States, and it is only by extreme luck or extreme cunning that the motorist avoids a long walk between his parking place and his real destination, if that destination is a popular centre like a department store. Legs that need to be at their fittest for the long tramps that the shop itself will provide have only too often lost their first freshness between the car and the shop. This is bad for business, and has already lasted too long. Now comes the solution, and it is beautiful in its simplicity. It is simply a new application of the cafeteria principle. The motor-car is to go into the shop. The shopping is done by driving slowly, along grooved slots, stretching out a hand to either side, piling the chosen goods in the car, and driving out past the cashier's desk. It saves much else besides the legs, for the business of wrapping and sending home goods need be no more. Undoubtedly life will be more strenuous for shopwalkers, and there are other complications. The shoplifter will find a closed car more useful than a cloak. The shopper who stays undecided at the counter pondering and weighing her choices, and letting time decide, will not only make a bigger block in the traffic, but with the best will in the world, will only too often fail to start a stone-cold engine. Unless the human heart changes, the shopper of clear-cut decisions will find his intended exit painfully slow. He will find himself deliberately held up while the salesman's litany of possible wants is chanted at him. But the real greatness of the new development will be seen, not among the stately counters of dignified merchandise, but in the bargain basement.

The finest lace in existence, so precious that its value cannot be ascertained, has just been sold to America. It is priceless not only in itself, but in its associations, for it is the complete set of bed-hangings which Napoleon gave to the Archduchess Maria Louise on the occasion of their marriage. The groundwork is powdered with the "Imperial Bee" and the Napoleonion Crown forms the corners. The border carries sprays of the lilies of France. The King's Galleries, Chelsea, London, have sold this wonderful relic to St. Louis, U.S.A., at a price that is stated to be many thousands of pounds.

Mrs. Aimée Temple McPherson, the "Four Square Gospel and Lighthouse" evangelist from Los Angeles, who has announced a campaign for the "conversion" of England, claims a small connection with the Far East. According to her own story, when she was 17 a young evangelist—an ex-boilermaker named Semple—"upset" her. After he had left the town she wrote to him. He came back, and they were married when she was 18. Soon after he went out to China as a missionary, and she went with him. In two years he died in a Hong Kong hospital. She went home with a baby. She next married Harold McPherson, a wholesale grocery salesman. They had a son. In 1921 the marriage was dissolved on the ground of incompatibility.

Viscount Folkestone spoke the other day for millions when he avowed that he had no idea at all about school examinations, "except that I could not pass the damned things myself." Multitudes of paternal hypocrites, forced to keep up an appearance of knowing everything, will warm to the viscount for his honest and healing confession. The questions that the boys and girls of to-day are set to answer, and that they are expected to "put up" in, completely paralysed their parents, and convict them, at the bar of their own consciences, of being ignoramuses of a prehistoric, semi-anthropoid type. But they never dare say so; they strive desperately to maintain the illusion of omniscience; and Lord Folkestone's simple admission, if it were to be repeated by all who realise its truth, would hardly leave a home without some shattered household idol.

SAFETY IN HONG KONG.

WHAT A CHINESE SAYS IN HIS WILL.

Why a Chinese left his native village and sought safety in Hong Kong was disclosed in his will. It says: "Owing to the chaotic conditions in the interior of China during the past few years, I brought my family to Hong Kong to live. I have purchased a house in New Kowloon Tong, being Lot No. 308, from the Hop Chong Building Company, for the sum of $13,916.50.

The above will was made by Chan Yan Po, who died at a friend's house at No. 54, Bonham Road, on June 2nd this year. He leaves property in Hong Kong amounting to $8,100. Probate has been granted to his widow, who is the sole executrix. The will also states that two instalments amounting to $8,000 had been paid on the house, which he bequeathes to his widow.

WIDOW LEAVES $12,000.

A Chinese widow named Tang Hu Shi, alias Hu Pui King, who died on May 10th, this year, leaves estate in the Colony amounting to $12,000. Probate of her will has been granted to her daughter-in-law and nephew-in-law. Bequests mentioned in the will were of a family nature.

BANK COMPRADEORE'S ESTATE.

Estate amounting to $25,900 was left by Emile Nam Hec, formerly chief compradore of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation at Saigon, Indo-China. He died intestate on August 6th, 1928, leaving a widow and six children. Letters of administration have been granted to Mr. L. R. Andrews, of Messrs. Johnstone, Stokes and Master, attorneys of the widow.

WEATHER REPORT.

The weather report, forecast and remarks issued by the Royal Observatory, Hong Kong, at 6 p.m. yesterday state:—

The typhoon now appears to be about 250 miles east-south-east of Manila, but its position and direction of motion are uncertain.

Local forecast:—North-east winds, moderate; fine.

THIRD KUOMINTANG CONFERENCE.

OPENING FIXED FOR BEGINNING OF NEXT YEAR.

CENTRAL OFFICE MAKES CERTAIN OF A MAJORITY.

FRESH REGISTRATION OF OLD MEMBERS.

It has been decided by the standing committee of the Central Executive Council of the Kuomintang that the Third Kuomintang conference will be held at the beginning of January next year. It is announced that the Central Party Office shall have the power to nominate one half of the delegates to be sent by the district Kuomintangs to the conference, while the districts themselves will be allowed to nominate the remaining half. This will insure that the Central Office will have a majority.

It is further announced that all members admitted to the party prior to 1924 must be registered again. This is a move on the part of the younger members to get rid of the Tung Ming Hui party, the predecessor of the Kuomintang. These two decisions are taken as showing that the conservative element in the party is in a very strong position and stands in little fear of what the radicals may do.

A disarmament conference, attended by all the high officials in Manchuria, has decided that the Manchurian army shall be reduced to 100,000 men. The government will make provision for all soldiers who are disbanded under the new scheme, and will find them employment either in agriculture or industry.

SIGNIFICANT DECISIONS.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

NANKING, Oct. 26th.

An important decision was reached to-day by the standing committee of the Central Executive Council of the Kuomintang, when it was decided that the Third Kuomintang Conference should be held on January 1st, 1929.

A most significant clause however is attached to the decision, stating that the Central Party Office will have the power to name half the delegates to be sent by the district Kuomintangs to the National Conference, while the other half will be elected by the district offices. This practically means that the Central Office will control at least half the votes of the conference.

Another very important decision is shown by the announcement that members of the old Tung Ming Hui and all persons admitted to the Kuomintang prior to 1924 will be reinstated.

The younger members contend that the present Kuomintang is very different from the old Tung Ming Hui or Kuomintang of past years, and they have no liking for the so-called "Old Guards." It has been their platform to demand re-registration of all Party members, hoping thus to eliminate the "Old Guards."

The foregoing two decisions mean a significant victory for the conservative members and also mean that the present Government and the present leaders are firm in their places and feel that the radicals have little chance of giving much trouble.

ARAB OUTRAGE IN MOROCCO.

SUCCESS OF PUNITIVE EXPEDITION.

RANSOM DEMANDED FOR MERCHANT.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

CASABLANCA, Oct. 25th.

The troops requisitioned to punish the tribesmen involved in the hold up which occurred at Wadzem in the hinterland report that the job has been successfully accomplished.

Zubitaga, however, is still apparently in the hands of the bandits, as he has been able to communicate to the French authorities that a ransom is required.

The French Press is showing agitation at the increasing number of fatal affairs in their protectorate.

It was reported on October 22nd that while crossing dangerous ground which necessitated a slow speed, a lorry containing a driver and two Spanish merchants by name Pomares and Zubitaga, found their way blocked by two donkeys. A couple of Arab horsemen suddenly appeared and opened fire, and Pomares was wounded. The driver immediately accelerated, but the lorry was soon brought to a standstill as the petrol tank was holed.

The Arabs prevented the three travellers from escaping and shot the driver dead despite his appeal "I am the father of four children." They carried off the others after taking their money, but Pomares, seeing the police in the distance, managed to fall from his horse but was again wounded by the two bandits, who then escaped carrying Zubitaga with them.

TAX ON SHIPPING PROFITS.

COLLECTION IN COUNTRY OF MANAGEMENT.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

GENEVA, Oct. 25th.

An international conference held under the auspices of the League of Nations for the purpose of considering the imposition of double taxation for fiscal evasion, passed a resolution to the effect that the profits of shipping companies should only be taxed in the country where the effective management of the concern was established.

The conference also adopted an amendment, submitted by the Japanese delegate, extending the principle to commercial air transport undertakings.

COMMITTEE OF EXPERTS.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, Oct. 25th.

It is understood that the preparations for the formation of the proposed Committee of Experts on German Reparations have been considerably facilitated by the conversation which took place in Paris last Friday between Mr. Winston Churchill and M. Poincaré.

It is considered probable that the Committee of Experts will meet before the end of the year.

TRIALS OF NEW H.M.S. "LONDON."

COUNTY CLASS CRUISER.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, Oct. 25th.

The latest ship in the Navy to bear the name of London is now undergoing her trials, the result of which will be kept secret, in accordance with modern Admiralty practice.

As soon as her trials are completed, H.M.S. London is to go out to the Mediterranean as flagship of one of the Cruiser Squadrons there. She is one of the 10,000 ton County Class and not one of the 8,000-ton City Class.

London has always been very keenly interested in ships named after it, which have been numerous, both armed merchantmen and ships of the regular Navy.

The last warship of the name was an 18-knot battleship of 15,000 tons, which distinguished itself in the Dardanelles in 1915 and afterwards co-operated with the Italian fleet at Toranto. After the Armistice, she was broken up.

GOVERNOR SMITH SCORES.

TELLING RETORT TO HOOVER.

DOORS RUSHED BY MOB.

[REUTER'S AMERICAN SERVICE.]

BOSTON, Oct. 25th.

The presidential campaign is gathering momentum and the public is at last showing signs of interest in the issues. As a smart retort to Mr. Hoover's undoubted success at New York on Monday, Governor Al Smith, the Democratic candidate scored a decided triumph at Boston last night.

A thousand people eager to secure admission broke down the doors and forced their way into the seething audience while Governor Smith was speaking.

It is estimated that over fourteen thousand persons were present, and they roared frenzied approval when the Democratic nominee met Mr. Hoover's challenge that he proposed to meet the perplexing problems of the country by resorting to State Socialism.

Mr. Hoover's attack was based upon the proposals outlined by Mr. Smith for dealing with Prohibition, farm relief and electrical power.

Old Stock Phrase. Governor Smith last night declared that if his course of action made him a Socialist, then famous Republicans such as President Roosevelt, and Mr. C. E. Hughes were also Socialists for opposing the alienation of the water-power of New York State.

Furthermore, he declared; every member of the Congress who voted for the McNary-Haugen Farm Relief Bill and for the Muscle Shoals Bill were Socialists by the same precept.

The cry of State Socialism against the Democrats was condemned by Governor Smith as a subterfuge and an old stock phrase of special interests. It was the cry of Republican reactionaries who for the past twenty-five years have been battling against every progressive welfare and labour measure.

PASSENGERS ON THE ZEPPELIN.

ONE WOMAN CHOSEN.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LAKEHURST, Oct. 25th.

One woman and five men have been accepted as passengers on Graf Zeppelin's homeward flight at a cost of $200 each. The passengers include Mrs. Clara Adams (wife of the tannery magnate and personal friend of President Hindenburg), Richard Burke (brother-in-law of Cornelius Vanderbilt), Colonel Grant Miller (a London business man, late of the Royal Air Force) and the banker, Mr. Paul Marko.

LABOUR IN THE LORDS.

LORD HALDANE'S SUCCESSOR.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Oct. 25th.

Lord Parmoor has been unanimously elected the leader of the Labour Peers in the House of Lords in succession to the late Lord Haldane.

Lord Parmoor, who was raised to the Peerage in 1914, after many years as a Unionist Member for Stroud, Stretford and Wycombe successively, joined the Labour Ministry in 1924, and was Lord President of the Council during the short-lived Labour Government of 1924.

A RECORD FLIGHT.

NEW YORK TO LOS ANGELES IN 25 HOURS.

[REUTER'S AMERICAN SERVICE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25th.

A message from Minesfield, Los Angeles, states that the monoplane, "Yankee Doodle," has arrived there after a nonstop flight from New York.

The time taken to cover the distance was 24 hours and 55 minutes, which is claimed as a record. The machine was piloted by Captain C. B. D. Collyer, and its owner, Mr. Harry Tucker, was carried as a passenger.

BENEFITS OF AIR POWER.

DISPLACING MILITARY GARRISONS.

FUTURE OF AIRSHIPS.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, Oct. 25th.

Sir Samuel Hoare, Secretary for Air, delivered an address this evening on aviation and the British Empire, before the Royal Geographical Society of Scotland.

Dealing with the problems which the invention of aviation had created for the British Empire, he said we went into the War an island Power completely immune from invasion. We came out of it victorious indeed, but with our capital more open by reason of this new invention to foreign attack than any of the great capitals of Western Europe.

Year by year we must give our minds and money to building up an Air Force strong enough to deter any would-be enemy from attacking us. He was glad to think that while five years ago there were practically no Air Force Squadrons available in this country for Home Defence, there were now 30 Squadrons out of the 52 that were being formed.

Aviation had, however, imposed upon the British taxpayers a new item in expenditure upon armaments at the very time when we wished to reduce over the whole world the burden of armaments. How could we find some advantage from flying to set off against this liability?

Unique Mobility.

Five years of experience in the Air Ministry had impressed upon him, with continuous force, that the only way in which that liability could be counter-balanced was by making the fullest possible use of the unique power of mobility of the aeroplane for effecting economies in Imperial defence and developing the communications and resources of the scattered Empire. There were certain fields of Imperial defence where an Air Force Wing could be economically used as a substitute for the older military forces rather than as a supplement to them.

Reductions in Iraq.

A conspicuous instance of this policy was the case of Iraq, where we had been able to reduce the garrison, which in 1921 comprised 33 Imperial Battalions, costing over £20,000,000 yearly, to five Squadrons of the Royal Air Force, without a single Imperial Battalion in support, costing less than £2,000,000. A single Squadron of the Air Force had forced the Imam of Yemin, who had for years encroached upon the Aden Protectorate, to leave it and to release Sheikh's friendly to the British whom he had kidnapped.

In Somaliland aeroplanes had in a few weeks removed the constant danger of Mullah risings, and on the North-West Frontier of India, with practically no casualties on either side, peace had been imposed upon unruly tribes by British airmen.

He foresaw the time when air-power, like sea-power, would be concentrated upon two or three strategic points of the Empire and when units, instead of being uneconomically tied down to local defence, would be freely moved from one threatened point to another. Such a policy presupposed the closest possible liaison between the Air Forces of the Empire.

Imperial Communications.

Dealing with aviation as a means of improving Imperial communication, Sir Samuel Hoare said that early next year a regular aeroplane service would be running every week between London and Karachi. Another great trunk aeroplane service was projected between London and Capetown. He was daily expecting detailed proposals which would enable him to judge whether the creation of this service was possible.

In regard to airships, he believed they could be used for eliminating two-thirds of the time now spent in journeys between London and the capitals of the Empire. That was the justification of the programme under which for the last three years the Air Ministry had been engaged upon the design and construction of two great airships. He anticipated the success of the experiment, and the Dominion Governments were co-operating, also believing in its success.

HONG KONG CRICKETERS AT HOME.

TOUR OF THE CHANNEL ISLANDS.

In August a team of Hong Kong cricketers on leave this year toured the Channel Islands and the scores are given below, writes Mr. H. E. Standage from Home. He adds: "Owing to certain failures the team was not as strong or as representative as it was hoped it would be. With one or two exceptions only, however, the players who kindly assisted to fill up the Hong Kong team all came from or had served in the East."

"Armstrong was born in Hong Kong and I understand hopes to go out there in a year or so and will be a great acquisition to Hong Kong cricket. Nason was recently out in Hong Kong with the Camerounians and Llewellyn served out there with his regiment, the 'Queen's Own,' some years ago. Of the others, Murphy and Arnold-Jenkins, are from India and Brodie from Australia. The result: Won 1, lost 1, drawn 2, was not at all bad and everyone, I think, enjoyed themselves immensely."

LOCAL FOOTBALL.

TO-DAY'S TEAMS AND PROSPECTS.

ARMY v. NAVY IN LAI WAH CUP.

The semi-final of the Lai Wah Cup competition which is being played on the H.K. Football Club Ground between the Army and the Navy, will be the chief match of the day. The Army are expected to win, although they have not got a soft thing, the Navy having another ship added to their strength. The game timed to commence at 4 p.m. will be under Mr. F. Smith, with Messrs. Lawrence and Samy as linesmen.

The junior teams will be fighting for points as usual, and one or two keen games will be seen. A good game will be that between South China "A" team and the Queen's. The latter team have only played one match in the league, which they won, but they are a good side, and are expected to walk away from Caroline Hill with the points. The referee is Mr. Lawrence.

The Navy and Royal Artillery should put up a good show, on the Navy Ground at Happy Valley, and a drawn game should be the result. Referee: Mr. Ip Kau Ko. The R.A.F. play St. Joseph's on the Recreation Ground at King's Park, and a belated win for the R.A.F. should be the ultimate result. Referee: Mr. Stoakes.

The K.O.S.B. and the Small Units clash on the Army Ground at Sookunpo, and a win for the K.O.S.B.'s seems inevitable. Referee: B. Q. M. S. Hutchins, R.A. Chinese Athletic entertain the South China "B" team on their ground at Happy Valley and a win for the Athletic is assured. Referee: Pte. Farnsworth.

Kowloon are at home to the University. The latter team are coming on quite well, but Kowloon have only to play as they did last week to gather the points. Referee: Mr. Greave.

Easterns and Recreio meet on the St. Joseph's Ground at Happy Valley. Recreio got a trouncing last week, but they will not have the same class to contend with in the Eastern side, on whom they may have their revenge. Referee: Sergt. Toms, R.A.

THE IMPLEMENTS OF GOLF.

NO DECISION ON NEW BALL PROPOSAL.

BAN ON STEEL SHAFTS.

The business meeting of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club was held at St. Andrews on September 26th, when Sir John K. Inglis, the retiring captain, presided.

Mr. Angus V. Hambro, chairman of the Rules of Golf Committee, in presenting the report of the committee, announced that it had been decided to postpone any action in regard to the specification of the size and weight of the golf ball, at the request of the United States Golf Association, until important experiments in that country had been completed. "Our Dominions are being consulted on the ball question," he said.

Mr. Hambro, speaking on the matter of steel shafts, said there had been some misrepresentation concerning them, and three of his points were:—(1) There was no shortage of hickory; (2) steel shafts had been authorised by the Rules of Golf Committee in climates where it was impossible to keep wooden shafts, and limited; (3) the executive committee of the Professional Golfers' Association considered that the introduction of these shafts would be detrimental to the professionals in this country. In the circumstances, said Mr. Hambro, the Rules of Golf Committee did not consider that they were justified in sanctioning steel shafts in the meantime.

With regard to the public statement made by Mr. Cyril Tolley proposing reform in the constitution of the Royal and Ancient Club Committee, no mention was made at the meeting.

The Case For A New Ball.

It was expected that a definite decision would be made on the ball question, but when Mr. Norman House stated on his returning from America that a statement would be made "in three or four months' time," golfers prepared for the shelving of the matter. It seems to be fairly certain that golf is to be made more difficult, but not yet. The present ball, which is 1.62 ounces in weight and has a diameter of 1.62 inches, has undoubtedly operated against the artist as distinct from the mighty hitter among golfers. It does not call for the same control, it is something in the nature of a "bullet" which can be "fired" as distinct from an arrow which calls for skilful consideration as to trajectory.

HOCKEY.

Y.M.C.A. v. H.K.S.R.A. II.

The following will represent the Y.M.C.A. 1st XI, against the H.K.S.R.A. II. on Tuesday at King's Park, Bullly off at 3 p.m.:—D. Harvey; E. R. Robinson, A. C. Jeffries; T. Seddon, F. Allen, E. O. Murphy; F. Mann, A. J. Ashby, F. R. Ashton, R. Murray, T. Price. Y.M.C.A. will play in colours.

It is the aim of those people who demand a lighter and larger ball to bring back artistry into the game so that ball control will count for more than it does with the present ball. Experts and golfing legislators of Great Britain and of America agree as to the desirability of a lighter ball but one thing which has operated against its standardisation has been that the vast community of moderate golfers is generally opposed to anything which will deprive them of the joy of a long drive. This matters more to the mediocre golfer than anything else in the game.

R. T. Jones, who is by general consent the greatest living golfer, is understood to favour a change which will penalise the golfer who has nothing but physical strength to commend his golf. His opinion is shared by the majority of the "masters," and the subject has been discussed in golfing quarters for many years. The case for the lighter ball is that its use would entail a greater test for championship competitors; the case against it is the natural desire of the moderate golfer to preserve anything which will flatter his golf.

Southampton Professional's Amazing Drive.

The most remarkable hole in one ever achieved has been accomplished by George Kirby, the local professional, on the Stoneham course. At the ninth hole, which measures 340 yards, he holed out with his driver, this being the greatest recorded distance of any hole in one shot. Kirby has now holed out in one on three occasions at Stoneham, and each one has been over 200 yards. He has holed the second (230 yards) and the thirteenth (247 yards) each in one stroke.

SHARK SHIP'S YEAR

IN PORT.

THE "ISTAR."

MYSTERY OF HER NEXT VOYAGE.

Within a week or two, says the London Morning Post, East India Dock will miss among its changing shipping a graceful, reticent shape that has lain so long at the west quay as to seem almost as permanent as the sheds and warehouses.

The steam yacht Istar came to her moorings just over a year ago, and simultaneously the quayside population began to speculate.

Her lines and appearance were enough to start tongues going. At Cowes, or in the sunny square of Monaco Harbour, she would have been part of the scene. But in the oily waters of the East India Dock, with rusty tramps and cargo ships unloading round her, she looked like a race-horse that had blundered into a vanholder's yard.

When two commissionaires were immediately engaged to keep all intruders off the Istar, and only the Custom officials were allowed on board, dockside curiosity grew consuming. Gossip thrived—there is no place like a port for rumours. But it seemed well established that there were thirty sharks' carcasses in the ship.

By-Products From Shark.

The clue was strange, but accurate. After a few days the Morning Post was able to announce that the Istar was nothing else than a floating factory for the manufacture of glue, fertilisers, oil, and the entire list of twenty-one by-products that can be extracted from the shark when it is treated as scientifically and thoroughly as the whale.

The work of the staff of chemists on board was described, and the statement made, on their information, that the yacht would sail to her hunting grounds within the fortnight. But month after month the Istar has lain, almost afloat, at her berth, until at last, the stevedores came to accept her as part of the landscape.

Captain's Statement.

Twelve months ago she was spick and span in her new grey paint, but a year of London atmosphere has tarnished the gold scroll-work at her bows, and put her Mermaid figure-head in need of a new dress. By having the "Strictly No Admittance" sign at the foot of the gangway, it became possible to have a few words with Capt. F. Thompson, in command, and a permanent resident of the Istar during her long stay in the Thames river.

He admitted that the ship was leaving soon, but would indicate neither her destination nor whether the purpose of her cruise had been changed. "It is for the owners, Marine Products, Ltd., to make all announcements." That was his final response.

But the employment of this 1,800-ton yacht, named after a Babylonian goddess, and built twenty-six years ago by a champagne magnate who lavished thousands on her upkeep, remains the same. Her expedition has only been delayed, and the regions in which she will work revised. A year ago she was bound for Australian waters; now, beyond the rather obvious hint that she will make for tropical seas, her goal is mysterious.

Marine Products informed me that the Istar's continued inactivity was due to protracted negotiations between London and Australia, but by the end of last month whatever business preliminaries are necessary to the vessel's sailing should have been completed. The company are confident that their new process will mean a big commercial future for shark skin for boots, shoes, and other articles usually made from leather.

The presence of the Istar in the Port of London for more than a year will cost in dues several hundreds of pounds.

MUNICIPAL CORRUPTION

AT CHICAGO.

GRAND JURY'S INDICTMENT.

New York, Sept. 30th. A Grand Jury in Chicago which has been hearing evidence concerning organized vice and the "padding" of the pay-rolls of municipal employees in that city yesterday handed down indictments against two negro politicians—one of them, Oscar de Prest, Republican candidate for Congress—and against a police lieutenant and ten other persons. The Grand Jury's presentation severely arraigned the Administration presided over by "Big" Bill Thompson, and declared that the conditions disclosed presented a "picture of a vicious system of spoils politics."

The evidence showed that a so-called syndicate was formed soon after the present Administration took office. It was controlled by political "bosses," and it extorted "protection money" from vicious enterprises. This condition, the presentment said, could only have existed through police protection. The Grand Jury was prevented by the terms of its instructions from making a wide inquiry, and it suggested the appointment of new investigating bodies to deal with conditions in the offices of the Corporation counsel, the City Prosecutor, and the City Attorney.

RED RASH ON ARMS AND LIMB

Of a Dry Nature. Used to Itch
and Burn. Cuticura Healed.

"I had a red rash on my arms and limb. It was of a dry nature, and used to itch and burn at night so that I could not sleep. My limb was affected for five years and ached all the time. I tried all kinds of remedies but they were of no avail. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. After using it and getting relief, I purchased more and now I am completely healed." (Signed) Frederick Shaw, 65, Northbrook Rd., Princes Ave., Liverpool, Eng.
